Hash No.: 131 – The Brewhouse (AKA Buzby & Screech's abode)

Hares: Adonis; Buzby; Screech

Hashers: Bigfoot; Hairy Mollusc; Lizbien; Mad Max; Mouthful; No Butt; Rambo; Shortie; Twisted Tart

Arriving at the address the house was in darkness and not a hasher, headtorch or car was in sight. Slightly concerned we had missed a cancellation notice Mouthful went to the door. "Hash is round the back" ... phew.

Waiting for us in Buzby's taphouse were all the other runners, some mulled wine, mince pies and a very well stocked cellar.

Last to arrive does the words. No problem. I'm not actually doing the trail but as we all know that really doesn't matter.

We all seemed to be walkers/wounded/lazy so various excuses were shared and the pre run drinks guzzled.

On to the trail: 2½ miles; No splits; 1 and on. Lazy hares.

Apparently it went through Digby & Sowton railway station, Sowton industrial estate, M5 services, passed the Blue Ball pub and the IKEA one way system!

After a good hour the taphouse (garage/workshop) sitters No Butt and Buzby were convinced the hashers were all in the pub down the road, thankfully Screech, Lizbien and Shortie we're first back shortly after.

Next back was Twisted Tart who had very helpfully been handed black chalk to mark out the checks on black tarmac. Errrr ???

Eventually the pack all returned safely and returned to The Brewhouse to enjoy the food laid on by Screech. Beef stew, veggie stew, jacket spuds & garlic bread.

Bigfoot changed into long trousers as it was Christmas!

Bad Backs/Achilles/stiff  bits were compared.

The local Fantastic Christmas lights were praised and several pints of wine [and beer!] were consumed.

Guess the number of checks was the party game 16! Bigfoot won the competition and was rewarded with Cadbury fingers.

At 22.52hrs the hard core of remaining hashers (people who outstay their welcome) retired to the living room, fought over the comfy chairs and cracked open the hard stuff.

Buzby and me had matching Christmas beer socks on! How very appropriate!

Huge thanks to Buzby & Screech for their wonderful hospitality. I haven't touched a drop since 🤪🍷

On-on to 2022!
Merry Christmas
No Butt xxx
