Following fantastic and emotional tributes from the Celebrant and Manpig (Teign Valley H3), a hash walk – because in his latter life this was Rambo’s pace – had been set around Newton Abbot, stopping at The Richard Hopkins for a beer or two and something to eat, before heading on to the Maltings Taphouse to close proceedings.

The trail was precisely 0.69 miles in length – a nod to Rambo’s favourite number – and conversation was lively throughout – predominantly recalled stories of Rambo’s numerous escapades in and out of hashing.

Whilst we were not able to say “on-on” at his actual funeral, this day could not have been a better send off for a prolific Devon hasher. His memory will live on.

On-on Rambo!
